The report that diphtheria is in the Michael Bradley family is unfounded. Mrs. Bradley has been ill with hay fever, but is convalescent.

The C. E. social and ice cream sale at the Congregational vestry was in every respect a success. The readings by Thomas Blood, impersonations, were much appreciated and loudly applauded. The music by the Nashoba quartet and that by the Cynthian orchestra was of the usual high order. Ice cream and lemonade were first class and met with ready sale. The young people who had charge of the entire program may well be congratulated for their efforts and the results.

Miss Helen Gilman entertained a party of twenty young friends at her home, the Ledges, last week Friday evening. The piazza was lighted by Chinese lanterns, and the woods in the background were sufficiently lighted to give a most pleasing and fairy-like effect. Progressive whist and dancing with refreshments made a full and delightful program for the entertainment of the evening.

Another party Monday evening that included the same guests was given by Herbert Whitcomb at his home on Whitcomb avenue. The entertainment of similar nature was enjoyed by twenty-five of Herbert's schoolmates and other friends.

STILL RIVER.

Monday morning about twenty boys of the United Boys' Brigade of America, from Northfield, arrived at this station in a special car. They are now at Cumbrey pond on land of Frank Ryan, where they have a lot of tents. With them are the boys from Maynard and Clinton, about seventy-five in all. They expected a lot from Worcester, but they did not come. The camp is run on strictly military lines, and the boys are having a fine time. They will break camp Monday.

Tree warden, George Maynard, and men commenced their annual hunt for gypsy moth eggs in Still River Wednesday, and up to Thursday afternoon they had found over ninety clusters of eggs and had not gotten over near all the ground. It looks as if in spite of all the precautions taken to stop them, that they were gaining headway very fast.

WESTFORD.

About Town.

The campers on Nabnasset pond had a moonlight celebration—musical, social, sporting. The event was planned by D. Frank Small, selectman of North Chelmsford, at whose camp the jolly evening was spent. The moon was assisted in lighting up by decorative lanterns of captivating colors. Those who had a sea turn of mind were cared for in the motor boat of D. Frank Small. Oak hill was represented by Hon. Herbert E. Fletcher and family; North Chelmsford by Selectman D. Frank Small and many others without reference to small or tall; West Chelmsford by Fred A. Snow and several boatloads ready for a moonlight row; Brookside and Westford Corner were there, and left the oily old mill and its care. Everything was grandly Small and that is all.

The first frost of the season was reported by Oliver Desjardins Tuesday morning, as seen at close range on Pigeon hill, the base of which is moistened by the waters of the Stony Brook.

Hiram Dane is gathering himself to spend the winter in California.

His daughter Josephine will accompany him. Mr. Dane has recently purchased land there by telegraph, but not the wireless variety.

The summer is past, the harvest is ended, and the Unitarian church will resume tomorrow.

Horace E. Gould has purchased the John Morrison farm near Keyes pond, known more recently as the Simpson place.

Duane H. Waller has gone to see Seattle and see his son, who is also at Seattle.

William A. Whitney got his foot mixed up in a car accident last week while working for the Boston and Maine in Lowell, and is now afoot at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Whitney, on the Lowell road.

Mervin Steele is working on the Stony Brook railroad section from Westford to North Chelmsford.

The Fletcher Cold Spring farm has recently added shingles, cupola and paint, the real trade mark of thrift. Next the assessors will give it a lift.

Edward Carlin has moved from most everywhere to the recent purchase of Horace E. Gould, the Simpson place.

Judson Sweetser on Bear hill is the only farmer in town who can say peaches this year. Although on Bear hill the bears are not there, but if any have aught idea of securing peaches other than by the regular purchasing contrivances of law, better beware of who is there.

George Philbrick, the blacksmith in George C. Moore's shop at Westford sawmill, has moved from North Chelmsford to the Whidden cottage at Westford station.

Eugene Ward, a former collector of milk for Arthur E. Boynton, has joined the yeomanry in the tillage of the Cold Spring farm.

Hon. Herbert E. Fletcher is suffering from a broken rib. Go and see George W. Hill and try his home-mixed skill.

Mrs. Ella Smith, embalmer for J. V. Hubbard of New Brunswick, N. J., has returned after a delightful visit to her cousin, Mrs. Frank Banister. Louis Riley of New York is visiting his aunt, Mrs. F. Banister; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Denton of Charlestown have been visiting his sister, Mrs. F. Banister.

A laborer working for a farmer in the northerly part of the town got his arm broken Tuesday, being assisted in breaking by the farmer, so it is reported. Dr. Sherman set the arm and Judge Atwood may be called upon to set the farmer.

John Adams Taylor is having a house to house introduction by himself in getting ages and other measurements and facts relating to the school census. Next Tuesday he will leave all this and more, and start for Miami university in Ohio. William R. Taylor has returned from vacation resting and bathing at Bath, Me.

Rev. Mr. Salee of Hanover is drinking the Cold Spring waters of Westford and eating the green crops of the Stony Brook valley.

The Westford Athletic association has played out its list of engagements and gone out of business until the starting of the trailing arbutus reminds them that it is time to start in and win.

Are there any who doubt there was a frost Monday night. Then just look at those beans in the F. W. Banister farm. They are not able to hold their heads up.

The two-year-old daughter of Mr. Seeds on the Providence road has diphtheria. No telling where the seeds came from.

Constables Walter Whidden and Edson G. Boynton made a liquor seizure Saturday night on the Groton road and placed Samuel Cote of Lowell under arrest, seizing his wagon, which contained two cases of beer and six empty kegs. The liquor was being delivered to campers at the various ponds. Cote was arraigned at Ayer Monday morning before Judge Atwood and the case continued until September 11. Cote had better look out, or he will be wearing one of those striped coats such as the state frequently uniforms conduct with.

Death.

Mrs. Sarah Edwards Johnson died at her home in West Chelmsford Monday afternoon, after a lingering illness. She will be better remembered as Mrs. Sarah Whidden, wife of John Whidden, for many years station agent in the village, who was instantly killed a few years ago in the shifting of cars at the station. Before marriage she will be familiarly remembered as Sarah Edwards, the daughter of Moses and Sarah Edwards, and spent her early life in Westford at the Edwards' homestead, corner of Brookside Plain and Oak hill road. Her early education was obtained for most part in the "little red schoolhouse," standing at that time on the Groton road, corner of Oak hill, long since giving place to a new building, which in turn is giving place to consolidation.

The funeral took place from her home in West Chelmsford, Wednesday afternoon. Rev. George L. Collier of the village church officiated. Slung by a male quartet of Lowell. The bearers were Charles, Fred and William Edwards, nephews, and Charles Edwards, a brother.

She leaves besides her husband, Claus Johnson, three brothers, William C. Edwards, the well-known contractor; Franklin and Charles Edwards; and one sister, Mrs. Alice Hall. Burial in the family lot in West Chelmsford.

Must Be Protected.

A petition headed by George C. Moore and signed by all the land owners in the Stony Brook valley, has been presented to the selectmen requesting them to post trespass notices as the law allows on the land bordering on the Stony brook, with a view to prevent the excessive tramping of land for fishing, accompanied frequently with the spirit of domineering insolence, as well as setting fires in violation of law. The law is not intended to be enforced against the neighboring yeoman casting the line for recreation or daily food, but when it comes to a dumping ground for traffic on the electric cars, an effort will be made to decrease the number so that there shall not be more fishermen than fish. While under contemplation for some time, it was hastened by a recent attempt to burn the barn of George W. Bussey.

Recent developments in regard to it show that the kerosene oil used was obtained from the station of the Boston and Maine railroad at Brookside; that the rags had been slept on by two white spaniel dogs owned by George C. Moore, being unlike any other in this vicinity; that the suspected party had a grudge against Mr. Moore, as well as against former constable Lincoln A. Reddick whom he threatened to square accounts with for arresting him several years ago for attempting to shoot with a revolver and using individuals for targets; that the suspected party was so confused in his actions on the night of the fire that he inquired of reliable parties the way to North Chelmsford, although he had travelled the road hundreds of times; that in this confused condition he thought he was setting fire to Mr. Moore's property.

As a result of this alarm, Mr. Moore has got the selectmen to appoint Louis Sharkey special police for Brookside. Mr. Sharkey has been in the employ of Mr. Moore for general repairs for several years, but since the attempted fire he has been transferred to outside patrol duty, night service.

School Closed.

Not since the Concord fight, in which citizens of Westford, headed by Col. Robinson, took an active part, has there been such a spunky, spattering, uprising as when it was learned that at a meeting of the school committee last week Thursday evening it was voted to close the Stony Brook school and transport to the new school at the Center, and every protestant has resolved himself into a hornet's nest to get at the school committee with, and, although unlike the Concord fight, no shot has yet been fired "heard round the world," yet there is plenty of louding up and when the legal time comes it will be aim, fire, bang, and down and out goes the school committee. Remember, you must practice a good deal in the aim, fire business, for only last spring it was aim, fire and out goes the school committee man who voted to close schools, and he dodged your aim and remained in office by a larger majority than his running mate who opposed consolidation.

A petition headed by Horace Hamblett, the oldest man in town, and signed by all the protestants, was sent to the school committee asking for a hearing. The committee granted the request, and the hearing was held at the town hall Tuesday evening, with in twenty-four hours after receiving the petition. Although the petitioners were out in numbers, they did not number enough to produce a new line of argument against closing. "Decrease in farm values" and "physical hardship," both are disproved by the statistics of the state board of education. The writer regrets that he is a sort of minority faction one with a few scattering minorities elsewhere, not yet tabulated, that divides good neighbors, friendships, and even a "house divided against itself." But until the evils of consolidation are proven and the benefits disproven, stand one for the unanswered facts. So far as learned, the result of the hearing did not change the attitude of the school committee.

Baseball.

Grantville Blues visited Lowell on last Saturday afternoon, and at Washington park met and defeated the strong Iroquois base ball club in a well-played game by the score of 6 to 2.

About seventy-five of the loyal rooters, accompanied by the ladies with flags, went down from here and took good seats in the grandstand, where they cheered their favorites at every opportunity, and the chances were many. Both sides put up a fast fielding game and the contest was finished in quick order, one hour and thirty minutes being the official time of the game. The Iroquois club treated the Blues in a very courteous manner, and every arrangement was made for their convenience. In fact, the local club has always got a good square deal every time they have visited Lowell, and have met the reply that the Blues are on the level, and that the Lowell boys consider it a pleasure to play in Grantville. That is a record in itself. Mr. Elvin umpired for the Lowell boys, and R. J. McCarthy was the local umpire. Not a semblance of a kick was heard on either side, and the general verdict appeared to be that the best team won.

Gilson, Hanson, Hemen and Ledwith led the Blues with the stick, while Healy and Buckingham were there with timely bingles. McCarthy pitched one of the best games of the season and was ably supported by Ledwith, who threw to second in his usual clever style. For the Iroquois the all-round playing of O'Donohue and Stephens and the timely hitting of Mason were features. Simoneau also put up a good game behind the bat, while the rest of the team fielded fast at all times. On next Saturday the Blues will play in Forge Village and a good game is expected.

Those who have returned to their respective homes after a long vacation on the shores of Forge pond are Mr. and Mrs. Bailey and family, Mr. and Mrs. Crowell, Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Reed and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Duncan and children, all of Chelsea. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders and two children of Everett left "Ideal wood" Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hildreth of Westford taking it for a few days.

Mr. Roberts preached his farewell sermon at St. Andrew's mission Sunday evening. There was a large audience present. He will return to Middletown Divinity school, Connecticut, where he will conclude his studies for the ministry.

There was a very pretty wedding in the village Tuesday, when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeLaurier and Mr. Bouchard were united in marriage at St. Catherine's church. Upon their return a bountiful dinner was served, and at 6.30 p.m. the young couple took the train for Canada, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Picnic.

The Sunday school children of St. Andrew's mission held their annual picnic at Cameron's grove Saturday afternoon, and was largely attended. The afternoon was spent very pleasantly in field sports, arranged by Paul Roberts, who has charge of St. Andrew's parish during the absence of the vicar, Rev. Thomas L. Fisher. The first on the program was the race of the older girls, won by Beatrice Hosmer, and Annie Orr second; small girls, 100 yards, won by Nellie Orr, Eva Mountain second; small boys' 100-yard dash, won by Ephraim Reed, Albert Mountain second. The next on the program was the chariot fight. This proved to be the most interesting of the sports and was watched by the crowd as the youngsters endeavored to pull one another from their mounts. The prize was awarded to Albert Mountain, mounted on William DeRoehn. The sports concluded with a relay race. About twenty of the children took part in this and was won by Philip Lodsides.

Lemonade was served throughout the afternoon by the thoughtfulness of Mr. Roberts, and at five o'clock there were refreshments of ice cream and cake for all present, after which they all went home, tired but happy children. The success of the affair was due to the ladies' sewing circle, who furnished the ice cream and cake and took charge of the little folk.

An alarm of fire created considerable excitement Monday forenoon. It was caused by a chimney burning in the house occupied by C. J. Knight. The house was filled with smoke and a lively blaze had started in on the roof, but prompt work with extinguishers soon conquered. Most of the furniture was removed from the house.

SHIRLEY.

Death.

Mrs. E. B. Fairchild, nee Maria H. Smith, wife of Rev. E. B. Fairchild, died at her home at Shirley Center, Tuesday morning, at 12.30, of heart trouble. Her death was sudden and came as a shock to her family and friends, as the day previous she was around the house attending to her household duties as usual, and at ten p. m., just before retiring, wrote a letter. Mrs. Fairchild has been in poor health and suffered from heart trouble for some time past.

Sympathy and regret was unanimously expressed by the people when the sad news of her sudden death became known throughout the town, and in Shirley Center, where she was so well known, a deep feeling of sorrow was cast over the entire neighborhood.

Mrs. Fairchild was a member of the First Unitarian church, parish and was always actively engaged for its welfare. She exemplified the highest type of love in her character, and her personality will never fade from the memory of those whose privilege it was to know her. Her age was 71 years, 11 months and 16 days. She was born in Meadville, Penn., where she met and married Mr. Fairchild about fifty years ago.

Funeral services were held at her late home Thursday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. George Willis Cooke of Wakefield officiating. The remains were taken to Stoneham for interment. The survivors are her husband, an adopted daughter, who resides in Lunenburg, and an adopted son who resides in Connecticut, besides other relatives.

Delicious refreshments were served, with an abundance of choice candies and bonbons.

The little hostess was the recipient of a score or more of useful and ornamental presents, which will always serve as a pleasant reminder of her birthday anniversary event. The young guests departed for their homes at seven o'clock with loving memories of the golden hours spent in the celebration of Hazel's tenth birthday. Those present were: Doris White, Christine Russell, Gladys Peterson, Agnes Lynch, Sarah Stevenson, Ruth Day, Gladys Annis, Cora James, Esther Harris, Bertha Wheeler, Isabella Smith and Ruth Knowles.

A Pleasant Vacation.

Mrs. Laura Hobbs of Melrose Highlands, a sister of Mrs. Lynch, is her guest, and Miss Mary A. Hobbs, also of Melrose Highlands, a niece, is at the home of Mrs. Lynch to remain.

Miss Hobbs has traveled in Africa, Italy and other places for the past eight years and is well informed on the habits and customs of the people; also, historical points of interest, besides possessing many fine exhibits of these places. She is much interested in missionary work and has been a keen observer of the needs along this line in the places she has visited, and has watched with a view to helpfulness, the characteristics and ability of missionaries.

Miss Hobbs is finely educated, and being a good conversationalist makes her a very interesting lady and splendid entertainer.

G. A. R.

The members of Old Shirley chapter, D. A. R., were the guests of Mrs. Ellen C. Lynch last week Thursday afternoon. A short business session was held. The entertainment of the afternoon followed. Questions on American history were distributed and answered by the members and guests.

A most interesting paper upon the early history of the Cogswell family in America was read by Mrs. Ferguson. Mr. M. J. Conant, a guest of the chapter, gave a splendid account of the outing of the D. A. R. at Marblehead.

Mrs. Lynch and her sisters, Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Hobbs, who were present, are descendants of the Cogswells, whose lives were reviewed. Miss Minnie Hobbs, who spent eight years in Africa, spoke delightfully of her stay there and told of the manners and customs of the people in a most interesting way. She illustrated her talk with pictures and exhibited handiwork of the natives, and a beautiful leopard skin.

A bountiful collation was served. After a social hour most delightfully passed among the bright, sweet flowers of the well-kept garden the friends reluctantly bade their hostess and her family, who had so cordially and kindly entertained them, good night, as the sun sank behind the western hills. It was a redletter day for the chapter, and one whose delightful memories will linger long in the minds of all who were fortunate enough to be present.

An Italian named Delmonico, employed as a section hand under Mr. Foley, on the Worcester and Nashua division here, got on a freight car Wednesday evening, between seven and eight, at the Main street crossing and climbed nearly to the top. When the freight reached the passenger station he was knocked off the car by being struck on the head by the coving, falling to the ground between the curbing and track, lying there till the last car had passed him. He was taken by Dr. Hopkins in his auto to his house and on examination found a scalp wound of three inches, necessitating the taking of several stitches and he was otherwise seriously injured in the back and other places about the body. The Bohemian Girl.

An audience which filled every seat in the town hall in Middlebury, Vt., last week Friday evening witnessed the production of the opera "The Bohemian Girl," which brought to a close the summer session of the college.

The opera was given by a chorus of sixty voices under the direction of Prof. E. H. Higley of Groton School and organist at St. Andrew's church, Ayer. Many well-known singers took part, among those appearing in solo work being George H. Remele, president; J. M. Thomas, Mrs. Walter E. Howard, Miss Emily Higley, Mrs. Cushing Hill, Miss Caroline Clark, Prof. Cunningham, Dr. Philip Mellen, A. C. Taber, Charles E. Hessegrave, and Dr. S. E. Eddy. Mrs. G. D. Miner played the piano accompaniments.

The concert was a success and those who were active in arranging for it and those who took part are to be congratulated. It was an eminently fitting conclusion of a very successful summer session.

Baseball.

The Ayer team played Pepperell the fourth game of the series at the Civic grounds last Saturday, and won by a score of 2 to 0. McCord had a better team than usual from Pepperell, and they certainly did their best to do the Ayer boys up brown, but they were not in it, only getting two men around the third base during the game, while the Ayer team secured two runs, one in the first by T. McGuane and one in the second by M. O'Neil.

After that the Pepperell team settled down and no more scoring was done the remaining seven innings. In the second half of the eighth McGuane came to bat, knocking out a single, stole second and third and started home on a wild throw to third, but was nipped at the plate by a very close margin. In the ninth the Pepperell boys went out in order, closing the game.

McCord, the one-arm wonder, made four put-outs at right field, and was also right there on the coaching line for his team, while Donahue, McGuane and O'Neil did some good batting for Ayer. O'Neil played a good game at left, and Dalley pitched a fine game all through, only letting two men reach third base.

The team will play at Pepperell on Monday, September 6, in the forenoon, and will play at Civic grounds here in the afternoon against the high school team.

Autumn is with us.

The shortening of days and the chill in the air reminds us that autumn is with us. In previous years, when leaves have been frost-nipped, herds of deer have left the wooded tracts and sought better fare in farmers' fields. Their ever increasing numbers sometimes exact heavy tribute. Hence, as is the custom in some other states, the open season is regularly advocated. But let us not forget that that putting firearms in the hands of immature youths or irresponsible adults will jeopardize not only the lives of families living near to wooded tracts, but unsuspecting travellers will run the risk of stray shots, and hunters themselves may fall victims, as has often been the case in other states. Would it not be better to remove the present restrictions from land owners, who it would seem ought to have a right to shoot the deer that have grown and fattened on their premises.

DISFIGURING SCARS.

How to Prevent Them After Being Burned or Wounded.

Scars are mainly the result of careless treatment, and once formed there are no instructions to be given to the amateur for their removal. A good surgeon will be able at least to restore a moderate amount of sightliness, even though he cannot wholly eradicate the scar. But when a wound has been received, if it is likely to leave a scar and one cannot strictly adhere to all given rules and advice, it should at once be put under the care of a skillful surgeon. If he is all that is desired, there will be scarcely a mark to tell of the accident unless the wound is unusually deep. Care must be taken not to draw the edges of the surrounding tissues out of shape. When the wound is dressed it positively must be bathed and the raw and bleeding edges should be cleansed from all particles of dust and dirt or any foreign matter, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

The reason that oily and creamy remedies are used is that any application that is of a greasy nature soothes the surrounding tender cuticle. Masks and bandages exclude the air and protect the wound from drying too quickly. If this should happen, it may be noticed that the skin becomes dry and shriveled, surely resulting in a scar, however small. If the skin is kept soft and elastic it stands to reason that these disfiguring contractions will to a certain extent lose something of their tension and in that way become less noticeable. Even after the wound has apparently healed and all bandages may be removed a soothing lotion should be used quite frequently, about three or four times daily, and plentifully at night, especially if the unfortunate one has received burns upon the face, arms or hands, because upon the exposed parts of the body the scar would be more noticeable and unsightly.

A lotion which is very soothing and may be used for such purpose is composed of four ounces of filtered rain-water or rosewater and one dram of rectified spirits, one dram of tannin and two drams of glycerin. Agitate thoroughly and apply. One will be thoroughly rewarded for patience and persistence in using these applications, especially after a severe burn, as then the tissues will have been deprived of their fatty substance by the extreme heat and will need nourishment.

How to Slip Rubber Plants.

When a rubber plant has grown too large to be convenient it can be slipped and the slips planted, and they should then grow into fine, healthy plants. Some persons use earth for the slipping process, but a famous florist says that for those who live in a city or town the sponge method is better. A large sponge of the very cheapest quality can be bought and cut into small pieces, or the bits of sponge one can get as cheap as 5 and 10 cents will do equally well. Next one must get young, healthy shoots and up near the tip of the tree make an incision in the stalk, not cutting it the whole way through. The plant or skin should be intact. Then the sponge should be wet and tied over the incision. This must be kept moist constantly. In a short time little hairlike roots will be thrown out of the sponge, and when these look fairly strong the branch should be severed below the sponge and the new plant potted, sponged and all. A shady place at first and afterward a sunny one will best suit the young plants.

How to Keep Silverware Bright.

Here is a good homemade liquid for keeping silver clean. It is a great help to every one who has tried it:

Make a strong alum water and skim off all the particles that will not dissolve. To this add shavings of pure white soap. Let them dissolve and bottle it. After the silver has been cleaned with whitening or any other soap or liquid that comes for that purpose rub each piece with a clean bit of cheesecloth soaked with this alum water. It adds luster and keeps the silver clean for quite some time. If it is found that any silver spoon or cup has been stained by medicine or egg, dip a cloth in sulphuric acid, rub the stained part until it disappears, then wash the piece in soap and water.

How to Soothe Tired Feet.

People who must stand at their work all day should wear very comfortable shoes with broad soles, well fitting arches, and proper heels. This is the only possible way of being comfortable under the circumstances. It is well also to wear high shoes, buttoned or laced closely around the ankles, which are apt to swell from the long strain of standing. The feet should be given a hot bath every night, as well as a morning bath, when they should be scrubbed with a stiff brush. A soothing bath for tired feet is warm water with a little baking soda or borax dissolved in it. A vigorous rub with alcohol is also good. Another soothing application is to rub the feet with a piece of lemon.

How to Fasten Hair Bows.

Little girls often have their hair "bobbed," and the mothers or nurses who must tie on the large bows are often perplexed as to how to fasten these large ribbons to the small wisp of hair. Here is a very good arrangement which overcomes the difficulty and at the same time preserves the ornamental bow without necessitating retying it each day. Make the large bow and sew a strip of stout baby ribbon of the same color underneath. Wind the narrow ribbon around the hair several times, tie in a tight bowknot and it will hold nicely.

Democrats Start Campaign Early in the State

NO ENTHUSIASM FOR COUGHLIN

Announcement of His Candidacy Fell Very Flat—Vahey Conceded Democratic Nomination—Suffolk District Attorney Fight

The Democratic campaign was opened in a mild way by the Young Men's Democratic club of ward twenty, Boston, with a summer outing at Squantum. Here two prominent Democrats of the state, Ex-Senator James H. Vahey, candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and Chairman Frederick J. McLeod of the Democratic state committee gave their views on the situation. Mr. Vahey made an earnest plea that the Democratic party should nominate whomever it desired to be governor.

It was perfectly natural probably for him to take a rap at the Payne tariff act and he imparted the somewhat astounding information that a great number of Republicans in the state are greatly disturbed over the passage of that measure. If that is so, it will undoubtedly be in evidence at the state election on Nov. 2. It is very evident that Mr. Vahey has sources of information which are not open to Republicans or to other Democrats in general.

Mr. McLeod expressed the opinion that victory was within the Democratic grasp, and he made a strong plea that they should take possession of it. Taken altogether, Mr. McLeod's speech was optimistic and encouraging.

Really, however, it is very well known that Democrats with opportunities for knowing the sentiment of the state are not laying any heavy wagers on a Democratic victory this fall. There does not seem to be anything to indicate any such result. On the contrary, the evidence all seems to point to a Republican victory of the usual magnitude.

Vahey an Easy Winner
At the same time it may be conceded that Mr. Vahey will receive the Democratic nomination without any great effort. The announcement of Mayor John T. Coughlin, of Fall River, that he is a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, has evidently aroused no wave of enthusiasm anywhere in the state. So far as can be observed it fell flat, and if he succeeds in getting a few delegates, they will come almost exclusively from his own section of the state. Democratic leaders in Boston do not think he will get enough votes in this city to make any showing whatever. The same is true of the suburbs around the city.

While it is true that the candidacy of Mr. Coughlin fell rather flat, it is equally true that there is no particular enthusiasm for Mr. Vahey. It is conceded, however, by a large part of the Democratic leadership that, having made the fight last year and polled a fair vote, there is no reason why he should not have a renomination, in view of the fact that no one else of particular prominence or popularity desires it. If Col. Gaston had merely said the word at the time his name was mentioned in connection with the nomination, he would have been named on the first ballot, probably by acclamation, or if not, by a very large majority of all the delegates present.

The Democratic machine has never been successfully operated without a considerable sum of money. It takes for the ordinary and perfectly legitimate needs of a campaign a fund of several thousand dollars, at the very least. It has always been possible to secure a sufficient fund when a man of leadership and prominence in the party has been the standard bearer. Last year the situation was somewhat helped by the fact that a presidential campaign was in progress, but this year, with no such canvass under way, Democrats think it will be extremely difficult to raise money in sufficient amount to conduct a telling campaign. With Gaston in the field it would be difficult.

That was quite an event at Beverly this week when Governor Draper and President Taft joined hands in fraternal greeting. Massachusetts has one of the finest summer resorts in the country, and it is very fortunate, not only for Massachusetts, but for Mr. Taft, that he should select one of her shore towns as his summer residence. It was very fitting, under these circumstances, that the governor should pay his respects to the head of the nation during his stay, and show him the courtesy due him from a governor to the president. Both the president and governor are enthusiastic golfers. They are both great executives, each in his own sphere, and both have, to a remarkable extent, the confidence of their constituents.

Two Democrats in Field
It is interesting to note that thus far there are two Democratic candidates for the Democratic nomination for the district attorney in the county of Suffolk. One of these is Councilor Edward P. Barry of South Boston, and the other is Felix W. Mc-

Gettrick of Boston. Barry has served two terms as a member of the governor's council and was formerly a newspaper man. He is now a lawyer and his specialty is said to be the theatrical business. How that should particularly fit him to be district attorney has not yet been made apparent. McGettrick came to Massachusetts from Vermont some years ago and was appointed assistant district attorney by John B. Moran while the latter held the office. McGettrick while in Vermont was in the federal service and his record there has been severely criticised in the past. The party leaders do not care for either one of these two candidates and it may be possible that some other stronger man may be entered for the nomination later on. In the meantime, District Attorney Arthur D. Hill holds the position, and many Democrats predict that he will continue to occupy it even after the election on Nov. 2. He has made such a splendid showing in that office that he has won the sympathy of the Boston voters regardless of party affiliations. He has secured a conviction in practically every case he has tried, and this has given him a prestige which will win him many votes at the polls.

Fletcher For the Council
Councilor Seward W. Jones of Newton is not a candidate for renomination and there is every evidence that Herbert E. Fletcher of Westford will be nominated to succeed him. Thus far, there is no opposition to Mr. Fletcher and none is expected. The district is strongly Republican. Mr. Fletcher served several terms in the house and also in the senate, and made an excellent record there.

In the third Suffolk councillor district, Ex-Representative William F. Murray is extremely disappointed because, as he claims, he had received assurances from Mayor Fitzgerald and many other Democratic leaders that they would push him for the nomination. At the end he found Lawrence H. Sullivan of the Charlestown district in the field, although he had withdrawn some time ago. Mr. Murray evidently thinks Sullivan was put into the fight to prevent his own success. It is charged by some of Murray's friends that Sullivan, who claims a residence on Essex street, Charlestown, does not now live there and never has, but that his home is in Somerville and that he has lived there for several years. He is a saloon keeper in Boston. It is the evident intention of some of the Democratic leaders to prevent Murray from getting the nomination. He is a young man just out of the legislature, where he was one of the youngest members ever chosen.

WHITE MEN'S MAGIC.

Indian Chief Terrified by an Experiment With a Hand Glass.

A curious device is known as the hand glass. This glass is open at top and bottom, but the top is smaller than the bottom and can easily be covered by the palm of the hand. The lower rim is ground smooth, so as to fit perfectly tight when attached to the plate of the air pump. Then if a person places his hand over the top of the glass while the air is exhausted by the pump he will suddenly find himself unable to remove his hand. The air, pressing down, will hold it firmly attached to the glass. No wonder the Indian chief of the Pottawatomie tribe was terrified when the white men made this experiment on him.

The story is told that the chief, with other warriors, made a delegation to Washington. They were anxious to find out if the white men knew any magic. The chief was asked to place his hand over one of these glasses and told that he would be unable to move as much as a finger. The Indian, with great contempt for persons who could believe such a thing, placed his palm over the glass, and when the air was exhausted he was terrified to find that he could not get away. All his bravado was ready to tomahawk their white brothers for casting spells on their chief.—Chicago News.

FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS.

Any Number May Play This Interesting and Instructive Game.

This game is played by any number of persons, who sit in a row or circle. One begins by repeating some familiar quotation, either prose or poetry, and the next must then give one the first word of which begins with the same letter as the last word of the quotation just given. The game goes on thus as long as the players choose.

Any one who does not give his quotation in one minute or any other time agreed upon before the game begins pays a forfeit, or instead of a forfeit he may be required to leave the game, and it may be thus continued till there is only one player left, who, of course, is declared the winner.

The following examples show how the quotations may follow each other: Know ye the land where the cypress and myrtle?—Byron.

Man never is, but always to be, blest.—Pope.

Belgium's capital had gathered then Her beauty and her chivalry.—Byron.

Come and walk with us, the walrus did beseech.—Carroll.

By torch and trumpet fast arrayed, Each horseman drew his battle blade.—Campbell.

The Standing Coin.

Take a long, narrow strip of paper and upon it place a five cent piece in an upright position, as shown in the picture. Take the end of the paper in the left hand and strike it rapidly and forcibly with the right. Give a sudden pull, and you have the paper in your hand, while the coin stands in the position it did before. It would seem as if the coin must fall, but try it, and with a little practice you will be able to accomplish the trick.

I Sell My City of Rome.

All the players sit in a circle. The leader says the first sentence, and the rest repeat it in turn. The leader then adds another, and both are repeated till the whole is complete. Players who blunder are put out.

The sentences run in this way: "I sell you my city of Rome. In this city there is a street; in this street there is a house; in this house there is a court; in this court there is a garden; in this garden there is a staircase; at the top of this staircase there is a room; in this room there is a bed; near this bed there is a table; on this table there is a cloth; on this cloth there is a cage; in this cage there is a bird."

"The bird says, I am in a cage. The cage says, I am on a table. The table says, I am near a bed. The bed says, I am in a room. The room says, I am at the top of the staircase. The staircase says, I am in a garden. The garden says, I am in a court. The court says, I am in a house. The house says, I am in a street—and here is my city of Rome sold!"

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]

The remodeling of the executive offices in the western wing of the White House began the other day with the removal of the office furniture to the cloakrooms adjoining the porte-cochere at the other end of the building. In the cloakrooms Assistant Secretary Mischler, who is in charge of the office force left behind by Mr. Taft on his departure for Beverly, will conduct such part of the president's routine correspondence as can be handled in his absence.

White House Changes.

The plans for the changes in the president's offices call for the expenditure of $40,000. The front elevation of the office wing will be left unchanged, as the extensions will be made at the rear. The contractors in charge of the work expect to tear out the rear walls within a few days and to rush the work as rapidly as possible so as to insure completion before the president's return on Nov. 10.

When the White House was remodeled in President Roosevelt's time the work lasted for six months, during a part of which period Mr. Roosevelt and his family were in the executive mansion.

Ghosts of the Capitol.

The big capitol building on the hill has its ghosts, identified and otherwise, with which to conjure up tales of other days. Some of the tales told by the old employees of the building in reference to these ghosts are picturesque; others are laughable; others carry with them that tinge of tragedy that makes them the more interesting.

Naturally there are quite a number of thoroughly identified ghosts registered in different parts of the edifice. The existence of the restless pilgrims from another land is vouched for by several of the employees of the building, and, while most of them are supposed to confine their operations to the basement, there are several that are reputed to roam all over the place.

Spectral Footsteps.

When the body of President Garfield lay in state at the capitol an old engineer who was employed in the basement and who ridiculed the idea of ghosts decided to be revenged upon the watchmen and policemen who remained in the building through the night. He procured two large English walnuts and securely tied the half shells on the four feet of the pet cat and carefully turned her loose in statutory hall.

The noise of these shells on the marble floors at midnight in the semidarkness as the distracted cat scampered about trying to get rid of her new shoes gave the watchers the worst fright of their lives. The incident, though a harmless joke, gave rise to the story of the spectral footsteps which follow all those who have to cross the rotunda in statutory hall after the building is closed for the night.

Wraith of J. Q. Adams.

The wraith of John Quincy Adams, from all narratives on the subject, seems to be the one most often encountered. At times it is alleged that he may be seen in statutory hall, formerly the old house of representatives and the scene of his death, accompanied by the whole congress of 1843 gathered in ghostly convocation. He is also accredited with roaming about all parts of the capitol and may be seen at almost any time.

There is also a story of General Logan, who returns, it is said, to observe the doings of the committee on military affairs, of which he was so long the chairman. Those who claim to have encountered the general say that he always wears a black slouch hat and remains either in the committee room or in the corridor adjoining.

L'Enfant's Apparition.

According to one of the many legends which have been gradually accumulating ever since the building was completed, a corridor in the senate wing basement has a frequent ghostly walker of a foreign aspect. This tall, distinguished looking individual is reported to confine his activities to pacing up and down that particular passageway and giving a dignified military salute at frequent intervals. His identity is still a mystery to the initiated in spiritual lore, but it is believed that it is the ghost of Major L'Enfant, the talented Frenchman who designed the city of Washington.

The demon cat legend has been repeated for the last fifty years as the animal apparition which returns at irregular periods. The story does not vary much, being merely that of an ordinary tabby at first sight, but she grows to a gigantic horror before the eyes of a frightened observer. Suddenly this demon cat emits a fierce yowl and with eyes ablaze and mouth open leaps toward the spectator, but invariably leaps quite over his head.

The Library Spooks.

In the library section there were two ghosts always on duty. If the solemn word of the capitol policemen may be believed. One of these, a wraith of a thin, little old gentleman, had been frantically searching for years in one of the subcellars for something hidden among the volumes. During his lifetime he had the reputation of being very eccentric, hoarding and hiding many unusual things among the books he loved. Just before his death he endeavored desperately to impart some knowledge to those around his bed, but, being paralyzed, died without having his last wish granted. Long after his demise it was discovered that he had stowed away several thousand dollars' worth of registered government bonds among the musty volumes of that subcellar. CARL SCHOFIELD.

MISS MAY MORRIS.

Daughter of William Morris to Lecture on Art Subjects.

Among the interesting people who will lecture in this country in the fall is Miss May Morris. Miss Morris is the daughter of the poet and artist William Morris. She is a keen student of historic design and embroidery, and a practical craftsman. She learned in the old way—namely, by working from the very beginning in her father's workshop, supplementing this invaluable training by a few years of study in the art schools and museum at Kensington. As William Morris had no other pupil working in this way, her knowledge of his method is unique.

For many years until his death Miss Morris had charge of the designing and most of the work in the embroidery department at Morris & Co. Some of her most important pieces were designed for America, notably a pair of silk curtains called the "Fruit Garden." During the past few years Miss Morris has produced considerable jewelry. She has followed the fortunes of the Arts and Crafts society from its foundation by her father and his friends until the present day and is deeply interested in the movement, which has developed so remarkably in England of late years. She has given lectures on design and embroidery at the Birmingham Municipal School of Art, at Manchester, at the Society of Arts in London and other centers.

While here she will lecture on "Medieval Embroidery," "Pageantry and the Masque," "Historic Costumes" and "Design in Dress."

The Simpler Life.

One hears so much talk about the extravagance and luxury indulged in by the people of this country that it is decidedly refreshing once in a while to find something that points in the opposite direction.

A striking illustration of the fact that in some respects Americans are learning something about the simpler life, if not the simple life, may be had from a comparison of the dinners served at the White House now and in past generations. And in making this comparison it must be borne in mind that just as the customs of the royal households in England and European countries set the fashions for those countries so, to a certain extent at least, do the usages of the White House influence the customs of this country.

A writer who compares the presidential dinners of the present day with those of former times points out the fact that, while the dinners nowadays are more frequent, they are less elaborate. They are over in one hour and a half at the latest, and the courses are fewer and more simple. Formerly no dinner was thought complete if it failed unless the table groaned with supplies. The courses were freighted with rich dishes, and the liquors were abundant. The dinners lasted till midnight. It was no small labor to sit them through. Nowadays before going home the ladies have time to chat in the parlor after the dinner and the gentlemen to have a good smoke in the library of the president. The change is surely one to be looked upon with favor and is not without its parallel in the private homes of the country. Ten or fifteen years ago a smart dinner served to a company of guests might have consisted of twelve or fourteen courses. Today a dinner of that length would be considered to be in poor taste, the modern hostess contenting herself with seven or eight courses at most and in many cases with five or six perfectly served courses.

If the woman of today could also copy the practice of the first lady of the land in making her entertainments more frequent and less elaborate another victory would be gained for the right sort of hospitality.

Girl You'd Hate to Trust.

She who is sugary sweet until she thinks she is alone. Far better be like an alligator pear with the roughness on the outside than resemble the tempting wild plum with bitterness within.

The girl who is careless to return small loans. This habit may spring from heedlessness, but it bears watching.

She who flatters you while she never has a good word for any one else.

The girl who openly boasts of the married men who are in love with her. The girl who gushes over her love for her parents while she lets her overworked mother mend and launder for her and spends more than her father can afford.

She who dresses lavishly on a small income. There is a distinction between looking well on little and cutting a spurge on nothing at all.

The girl who says she "dotes on children," but whose small brothers and sisters shun her.

She who is prinked out for show views—and a sight when caught unawares. The man who contemplates matrimony should make it a point to see his Angelina off guard.

The girl who is horrified at calling a spade by its "right name," but whose taste in literature is lurid.

She who has great tales of her prowess as a worker, but who never sees any work to be done. The real workers of the world rarely discuss what they do and never need jogs for its doing.

FITS OF PURE ANGER.

How to Know and Check This Dangerous Tendency.

There is many a young mother who admires secretly the little outbursts of anger that baby gives vent to and thinks they are funny and cute until by the time the child is two or three years old she awakes to the sad realization that her baby has grown into a willful and spoiled child who is thought anything but lovable and cute by other people. She then begins to see what lack of discipline has done for the baby. Every mother, out of justice to the child as well as to herself, should check these outbursts of anger when the child first shows an inclination to indulge in them. But when the mother finds that the outbursts have taken a firm hold on the child and seem to occur periodically she should set about the tedious task of overcoming them.

The little one should be punished, but her will must not be broken by repeated "spankings," for these seldom fail to give the child a moody, sulky disposition. It takes times and patience to effect a cure. The best cure for these fits of anger is to shut the child in a room by itself whenever they occur. A particularly successful method of making a naughty child good is to divert its attention from unpleasant things. Children often have as much to make them irritable and cross as a grown person, and when a mother notices that a child is fretful it takes but a minute to find an unused toy or a new book or to suggest a new and interesting occupation that will brighten the child's mood and prevent an outburst of anger before the child can be aware of its existence.

How to Make a Lily Pond.

Aquatic plants for the home garden are not grown as much as they should be. Amateurs who hesitate for fear of failure are wrong, for water lilies require far less care than tender budding plants and are less expensive. Any swampy or boggy ground can easily be converted into an aquatic garden. Flowering shrubs, trees and ferns will grow luxuriantly near a pond. When you decide on the location of your pond, which should be at the lowest point of the garden, dig out the soil from eighteen inches to three feet deep, depending on the severity of the winters in your locality. The lilies must be planted deep enough to prevent them freezing. An inexpensive way to make the pond hold water is to line it with common clay. Cover the bottom and sides of the pond with this clay three or four inches thick and beat firmly until solid and even. The best method is to plant the water lilies in boxes or tubs. Use very rich soil, as coarse as possible. Rough pieces of sod and lumps of earth should be mixed in. Boxes holding five or six cubic feet will accommodate strong growing plants, and others holding half that much will be large enough for the weaker growing plants. If the pond is large the soil may be placed on the bottom and the plants set out in it, but in smaller ponds under this method the roots of the stronger plants will quickly cover the bottom, crowding out the weaker.

How to Make a Yoke Fit Right.

Often a dress is ruined by the fit of the yoke. It hitches or rides in a way that is as uncomfortable as it is unsightly. The easiest way to remedy this defect is to have the yoke made on a fitted lawn lining which buttons around the waist. This should have a horizontal seam run just about the bust line to take in an extra fullness. If the lining seems too warm or is too much trouble to make, the yoke can be attached to a sort of harness made with a belt of tape to which are joined vertical straps attached to the bottom of the yoke. Even easier is it to sew short tabs of tape or muslin to the bottom of the yoke. These can be securely pinned to the corset without tearing the yoke itself. It is a good idea to fasten the smallest sized safety pins to these tabs so that they are always in readiness.

How to Reset Old Chairs.

If you have old rush bottom or cane seated chairs and do not want to go to the expense of having them recaned try making a seat for them at home. Cut away carefully the caning and nail strips of girdling tightly across the opening. Cover with a piece of fine fiber matting or burlap, just the shape of the seat, but a half inch larger. Turn in the edges all around and nail to the chair with brass headed tacks for studding. If the woodwork has grown shabby by a preparation that quickly removes and softens the varnish and scrape with pieces of glass. The chair can then be done up with any desired stain.

How to Put Stamps on Letters.

"Most people don't know how to put a stamp on a letter," said a postoffice official. "They moisten the stamp, taking off a certain amount of the mucilage by the process and making it hard to stick. The proper way is to moisten the tip of the envelope where the stamp is to go, then press on the stamp. The paper should not be soaked, just moistened on the surface, however. That stamp will never drop off in the mail bag."

How to Taper the Fingers.

Most women in trying to make their fingers more tapering will stroke them from the base to the tip. A well known manicurist has said that the process should be reversed. Clasp the tip of each finger between the thumb and first finger of the opposite hand and stroke firmly but gently backward from the tip, as when working on a glove.

The Baby Turtle.

Turtles lay their eggs in the sand and let the sun hatch them out. They do not lay them all in one place probably because they think it safer to scatter them. Then, even though one be stolen or broken, the others may escape. The mother turtle covers them all carefully up, one after another, with a thin sprinkling of sand and then apparently never gives them another thought, considering her maternal duty done. Certain it is that she has never been discovered going near these egg babies again, and when they hatch at last the tiny soft backed creatures at once begin crawling around in search of flies and other food as independently as if there were no such thing as a mother in the world. A little girl who found one of these odd oblong turtle eggs on a sandy river bank in Louisiana took it home and put it in a teneap on the table for safe keeping. A few hours later a slight noise was noticed in that direction, and on looking in the cup again she found a baby turtle, full fledged, but tiny, scrambling about among the bits of its broken eggshell cradle.

Ravens and the Hapsburgs.

Henri de Weydel tells the story of the late Empress Elizabeth and the ravens which Maurus Jokel gave in an article at the time of her majesty's tragic death. Early in her life Elizabeth wrote some verses in Hungarian on the subject of the raven, the bird of ill omen, which plays a great part in the history of the Hapsburgs. According to the imperial poetess, a flight of ravens was hovering over Olmutz when Francis Joseph received from his uncle's hands the crown which was destined to inflict upon him such miseries. A raven followed Maximilian and Charlotte on their last walk before their departure for Mexico, and when Maria Christina was starting to receive the crown of Spain, which was one day to be so grievous a burden, a raven flew over the horses' heads and accompanied the carriage to the railway station. These incidents were the subject of the poem.—Westminster Gazette.

Room for Improvement.

A certain estimable old gentleman is at all times worth listening to, though occasionally his grammar is scarcely perfect. He was dining on one occasion with the local squire, when, much to the disgust of his worthy host, a trifling error on the old gentleman's part was pounced upon and loudly repeated by the son and heir of the house. There was a painful silence, broken at length by the host.

"My son," he remarked quietly to the young fellow, "there are times, I admit, when our old friend's speech is a little peculiar. At such times you might be of mutual assistance to each other."

"In what way, sir?" asked the son. "Well," was the severe rejoinder. "You might give Mr. X. a lesson or two in grammar. In return for which I have no doubt he would assist you to patch up the holes in your manners."—London Tit-Bits.

Three Reasons For Declining.

Lord Broughton had a temper which sometimes exploded in a most disconcerting manner. It is related that on one occasion he dined with a large party at Thackeray's house, and after dinner some specially fine Madeira was produced. In his usual genial way the novelist pressed this on his guests and, patting his neighbor, Lord Broughton, on the back, remarked, "Now, my dear old boy, you must try some of this."

A chill fell on the company when the noble lord retorted, "I am not your dear boy, I am not old, and — your wine."

Jeremiah Jinks is rich and stingy. An acquaintance of his met Jinks' son the other day. "Your father seems to have lost a good deal of money lately. The last time I saw him he was complaining and saying he must economize."

"Economize! Did he say where he was going to begin?"

"Yes; on his table, he said."

"Then he must be going to take away the tablecloth," was the final declaration.—Exchange.

A Big Birdcage.

A very peculiar institution in the New York zoo is what is known as "the flying birdcage." This magnificent aviary is the largest of its kind in the world, being 55 feet high, 72 feet wide and 150 feet long. Large oak and other trees grow in this cage, and the birds live within its wire netting bounds in the utmost freedom. The frame of the cage is built of iron pipes, which are covered over with thin meshed netting.

"And that young man kissed you on the lips! Why didn't you offer him your hand?" said the father.

WHY GIRLS SUCCEED.

The Business Maiden Must Be Careful With Her Pannies.

One of the hardest lessons the business girl has to learn is to save, says Barbara Boyd.

It is difficult for youth, with its enthusiasm and ambitions and rose colored view of life, to anticipate want. Whereas for age—Isn't there a Prince Charming coming some day who will take care of her?

It is difficult to save on $6 a week. Try it.

But nevertheless a girl should resolutely make herself save. And if she once gets the habit, if she acquires ever so small a bank account, this in itself helps. It pays to start a saving fund, if only with $1, just for the little niche it makes in the memory and the insistent voice with which it asks for more.

Many schemes are devised by business girls to help them save. One girl has a number of little envelopes labeled with her various needs—"luncheon," "car fare," "church," "board," "laundry," and so on. Each week when she gets her salary she slips into each envelope its requisite amount, and when it is due the money is there for it. She is not the girl who must run and borrow of her landlady when the laundry comes or who must ask her friends at the office to loan her enough for her lunch the day before salary is due. This method of planning leisurely and calmly how she will spend her money enables her each week to set aside a little for saving.

Another girl puts away a certain amount when she gets her salary, saying laughingly, "If I don't have it I can't spend it." But though she saves by this method, she probably doesn't get as much out of what she spends as though she planned more carefully.

Planning in one form or another is the keynote to saving. Hasty buying and thoughtless spending are its deathknell. The girl who wants to save should plan carefully her expenditures, her regular weekly expenses as well as the twice a year expenditure for clothes.

The girl who wants to save should not buy her clothes thoughtlessly. She should not buy on impulse. She should deliberately plan her clothes campaign, know beforehand what she wants, buy that and that only. She will be dressed with better taste and better get the worth of her money.

This all may be tiresome and boring to do. But it will pay a girl to set herself to the task resolutely. It puts a different aspect on life to have a few hundred dollars in bank. And it may put you in a position to grasp opportunities which will mean much to a happy and useful future, but which you might be afraid to venture without some money to your credit to fall back upon.

HOUSEWIFE HINTS.

Use strips of shoe leather to tack heavy roses to the house or trellis, since it outlasts twine or strips of goods.

Cut out the corners from all heavy envelopes, for they are excellent for holding coins sent by mail. They also make good book corner protectors.

Knitted underwear makes the softest and best ironing holders. Put several thicknesses together and quilt on the machine. Make a tape loop to hang the holder to a nail.

A box of sardines and a can of shrimp, both prepared for eating and served together on lettuce leaves with a dressing of oil, vinegar, onion juice, salt and pepper, make a delicious salad. Mayonnaise dressing may be used.

Be careful where you place your dressing tables and mirrors. Sunlight will destroy the finest bevel French plate, and it is impossible to restore the backing without considerable expense. Dampness will destroy it in the same manner.

When scraping new potatoes they will invariably blacken the hands. There is nothing better than a piece of lemon for removing the blemish, and when obstinate if a pinch of powdered pumice is placed on the lemon it will instantly remove the stain.

To quickly prepare coconuts or horseradish pare for scraping and lessen the task and the usual "crying" when grating the horseradish by running the roots through the chopping machine. All hard and fibrous pieces of horseradish should be pared before running the roots through the machine.

To have a hardy scarlet ramble make a good showing plant it with the rack extending north and south. In this way the rose gets all of the eastern and western sun and will bloom profusely on both sides. This is one of the most luxuriant roses one can cultivate, and it delights in the entire sunshine of the day. If the long branches of this rose are turned down and covered with earth it will make a new branch, and in this way one can soon have an arbor of scarlet roses.

Very Absentminded.

An interesting event occurred in the household of a scientific gentleman who is a member of one of Uncle Sam's chemical bureaus in Washington.

The gentleman himself was hard at work in his home laboratory when the news was brought him.

"It's a boy," quietly announced the physician as he stopped on the threshold.

"All right, all right," muttered the absentminded chemist as he bent over his work. "Er—oh—ask him what he wants, won't you?"

THE KISSING FETE.

By ROBERT C. WARNER.

[Copyright, 1920, by American Press Association.]

The fete was a great success. Long before the hour announced for the beginning of the festivities crowds of people were flocking to the entrances of the park, and during the evening many thousands came and went. Of these there were the young and the older, married, the former as participants, the latter as spectators.

And what was the occasion of the fete? An edict had gone forth that between the hours of 8 and 12 any young man might kiss any girl in the park provided he wore in his cap a green feather. This provision was introduced to enable any girl opposed to strange embraces to take to flight on the approach of a would be kisser.

As the clock struck 9 two young girls entered the park arm in arm. One was tall and stately, with very black eyes, a cable of plaited black hair hanging down her back. The other was smaller, a blue eyed beauty, with hair of spun gold drifting in the breeze. They had no sooner passed the gate than green feathers began to flutter in their path. Many a young man approached, but was deterred by a repellent glance from the queenly brunette. For an hour the pair walked about the park watching the others. Now and again some young girl would suddenly dart away on seeing a young approach whom she wished to avoid or to appear to avoid. Here and there would be heard suppressed screams and giggles, while smacks resounded like pistol shots.

But the two girls walked untouched. Many persons noticed them, but no one seemed to know them. It was supposed that they were of high degree, daughters of noblemen who had come to witness the kissing without taking part in it, and it was even whispered that they were from the court. But there were men present from the court, and none of them had ever seen the girls before. The people wondered why these gallants dared not offer to kiss two such beauties.

Near midnight a man with a black beard entered in company with one who appeared to be his son. It was apparent that both were disguised. Passing the two girls, they turned and looked at them, then, walking in a circle, met them again. At this second meeting the younger man darted toward the blue eyed girl. Seeing him coming, she left her companion and ran away. Those watching these unknown people then saw the older man approach the girl who was left. They expected that she would wither him with a glance. What was their surprise to see her after a faint resistance submit to be kissed. Then when he offered his arm she took it, and they walked on together.

"You are very bold," said the lady.

"Such beauty as yours would inspire boldness in a coward."

"You had no right to kiss me. You do not wear the green feather."

"True. I never thought of that. But such beauty as yours makes one forget."

"You may have a ladylove."

"Such beauty as yours would win me from her in spite of my best resolution."

"You do not deny that she exists."

"I do not. Whatever or whoever I am, I am no liar."

"But would you break a heart for a stranger?"

"It is she who is the stranger. I have never seen her."

"Never have seen her! What manner of man are you who woos without seeing her you woo?"

"I see her I woo. I have not seen her I have intended to make my bride."

"There comes my friend with your boy. I must rejoin her. This is but the adventure of an evening. Farewell."

"We will not part without the pledge of another meeting. Tell me when and where I may communicate with you tomorrow."

"You may call upon me tomorrow evening." She gave him the location of a villa where she said she lived. "But you will not. You will think of this affair overnight and resolve to be true to that which I surmise is to your interest."

"Wait and see."

The next evening the stranger drove up to the villa in question. He was ushered in by lackeys with every evidence of profound respect. He seemed surprised. In a sumptuous salon he was received by the lady who had so suddenly inspired him. She was smiling at him with an air of triumph.

"I am surprised to see your majesty," she began, but he interrupted her.

"Majesty?"

"Yes. You were known to me from the first."

"Who are you?"

"First let me know your royal decision. For me will you break with the Princess Margaret?"

"The Princess Margaret! What do you know of the Princess Margaret?"

"Will you cast her off for one you have seen but once?"

"I will wed no one at present. I ask to be permitted to pay my addresses to you with a view to raising you to a throne."

"So you are not so sure of this newborn love after all?"

"I am. I wish time to prepare my people for the change."

The lady turned her head aside. The king took one of her hands in his and poured forth a torrent of words. Suddenly she stopped him.

"I am the Princess Margaret."

"You the Princess Margaret?"

Deaths.

News was received here by telephone at midnight Thursday of the sudden death of Michael Sullivan of Groton street. Mr. Sullivan was one of the many who attended the dance in Groton town hall that evening. Details of his sudden death are not yet learned, but it is understood, he was preparing to take part in a dance, and placing his hand near his heart dropped dead. Dr. Priest was quickly summoned, but pronounced the man beyond human aid. Word was sent to his parents in this town.

His death is a great shock to the entire community, as he was apparently in the best of health and a strong, robust man.

Leaving Town.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Nash have moved to Revere, where Mr. Nash has accepted a position with the Forbes Lithograph Manufacturing Co. The town suffers a loss in the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Nash, who have been here for several years, and not only leave a host of friends, but a distinct void in social and musical circles, as they have taken active part in church work, music and social events. Mr. Nash was for a long time in charge of the color department at the Pepperell Card and Paper Co., then with the Champion International mill until its shutdown, and only a short time before they resumed work here did he accept his present position. Their many friends wish them well in their new home.

Grange.

The Patrons of Townsend, Shirley, Groton, Pepperell, Ayer and Littleton will be pleased to learn that the first session of fall meetings of the Middlesex-Vorcesster Pomona grange will be held at North Leominster, Wednesday, September 8, all day and evening. The questions for discussion are a very important feature of the extensive program: Do you believe in the present postage regulations of press censorship? How can the farmers cooperate in selling? Best roofing for farm buildings. Milk—straight, modified, condensed. The farm, the public, the outlook. The relation of the "bread line" of New York city to the farmers of New England. The penny savings bank and what becomes of the money that goes into the country banks. The spy systems of Russia and America, and how they differ. Best results from an acre of land. Pine tree blight.

At 7.45 in the evening the fifth degree, which will be followed by that dramatic tragedy, "How the story grew," exemplified by members of the Leominster grange. This will be followed by a social. Another important note is the election of a member of the executive committee.

Should Have a Fair.

It seems too bad that we are to allow another year to go by without a fair, but lack of interest and practically no response to the call for a meeting, makes this decision inevitable. It is the year 1909, and almost ten have elapsed since the town had an old home day. There is plenty of good material to work on, and any amount of cooperation to be found to make one day in the year a great success.

We hear plenty calls to boost and not to knock. Good, sound, respectful criticism is good for any enterprise, and if we had a fair or old home day, or any other kind of a day wherein all took a rest from labor and enjoyed enthusiastic, mutual recreation, a splendid program of parade, sports, lecture and music could be arranged, and all would gladly placard the entire town with "You'll like our town, and we want to show you what our town can do," and we could advertise in the entire press of the state. That's what will boost us—advertisements of our great natural advantages and proofs of our local pride and push.

team comes here to again trim the locals. Last Saturday's game at Ayer resulted 2 to 0 in favor of Ayer. This was by far the best game witnessed this season. Our boys went with a weak team, but strong in determination. The features of the game were the pitching of Shattuck, the Oak Hill boy. It was his first game of the season. He struck out eight, only passed one on balls and allowed only one hit. Although our boys had the bases filled several times, unlucky hitting could not bring a run. Dalley pitched a fine game for Ayer and had good support. He struck out five, passed three and only allowed three hits. The next game promises to be a hummer.

BROOKLINE, N. H.

Old Home Day.

Friday, August 27, Brookline celebrated her eighth consecutive old home day. The day was an ideal one and the exercise complete in every feature, reflecting much credit upon the officers of the association.

The village was in gala attire and the stars and stripes decked nearly every residence and welcome greeted one constantly.

At an early hour the guests commenced to arrive from all sections and each train was laden with home comers.

At 9.30 the Lunenburg military band gave an excellent concert on the green in front of the Methodist church.

At eleven o'clock the auditorium at the Congregational church was filled to overflowing and the following program given: Selection, "Passing thoughts," band; invocation, Rev. Warren L. Noyes; vocal solo, "Home, sweet home," Mrs. Phoebe J. Randall. President George H. Nye welcomed the guests in his usual cordial manner, Miss Ellen C. Sawtelle gracefully responding. Mrs. Mabel Brackett sang with effect "The dear old-fashioned garden," giving in response to an encore, "The songs my mother used to sing." Rev. Herbert J. Foote of Sunapee gave the oration, taking for his theme, "Home, its place in modern life." Selection, "Pleasant dreams," band. Prof. Albert Seaver of Townsend presided at the organ.

At 12.30 all marched to Tarbell's hall, Alfred E. Cox leading the procession as marshal. Here an excellent dinner was served by Page, caterer of Lowell. After dinner all repaired to the Methodist church, the secretary, Miss Blanche W. Hall, reading letters from Rev. C. W. Dockrill, Grasmere; James A. Horton, Greenfield, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. L. F.
