Baptist Notes.

Recently the churches of Littleton accepted the invitations of one of them to attend that church on Sun-day morning and an excellent service was held in which all the pastors participated and each of the churches participated and each of the churches were strongly represented in the large congregation that gathered. This was in accordance with an annual custom which stimulates the good fellowship which is one feature in Littleton's in-terpretation of christian Hie. But it is realized that the value and useful-ness of the churches to the commu-nity depends more on the strength and efficiency of each church the Ralph Connor, as he is known as an author but who in real life is Rev. W. C. Gordon, of Winni-peg, Manitoba, and whom Mr. Taylor has met most agreeably in his work in North Dakota. Mr. Taylor took this book of more than three hun-dred pages and condensed it into a delightful evening's reading, giving many pages of the story and telling intervening passages in his own words. It was a very skillful deline-ation of the various characters, bring-ing out the pathos and humor of this rugged story of the northwest cattle country and making plain the lesson of service and sacrifice that the book teaches.

Miss Beatrice Sutherland was with the home people over Sunday.

Wedding.

Thomas E. Pedevolotis, of Lowell, and Miss Mary E. Socorelis, of Westford, were maried on Sunday at the home of the bride's mother on Le-land road at ten o'clock in the morn-ing. The Greek wedding ceremony was performed by the priest of the Greek Orthodox church, of Lowell. Miss Helen Socorelis, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Philip Alascarcos, of Lowell, was the best man. The bride's dress was of white silk with yell and a large bridal bon-man. The bride's dress was of white silk with veil and a large bridal bou-quet was carried. The bridesmald was also dressed in white. The groom's gift to the bride was a beau-tiful watch and chain. After the ceremony and felicita-tions a wedding dinner was served to about seventy-live guests, mostly fel-low country men from Lowell's Greek colony. The tables were spread out-of-doors in the bright September sun-shine. Typical Greek wedding cake had its place of honor among the good things.

Re-pairs consisting of the following will now be rushed to completion: The laying of a new hard pine floor in the main hall, the moving of the stage to the extreme rear of the hall will eliminate the dining-room, the walls will all be painted and new seats provided, as the stage will be erected in the room now used as a dining-room. Portable tables will be installed to be placed in the main hall when suppers are in progress. The entire building will be re-shingled and the tower which is worn and delapitated will be remov-ed. The entire exterior will also be ed. The entire exterior will also be painted and all minor, but necessary repairs attended to.

Undergoes Another Operation. John H. Will left Shirley on Wed-nesday noon for Boston, where he en-tered the Massachusetts General hospital to be treated for the sepic con-dition of a wound, the results of an operation in that hospital about four months ago, when Mr. Will was op-erated upon and three stones remov-ed from his left kidney. A very small portion of the wound is still open and has not been responsive to the best of treatment and the surgeons at the hospital, after endeavoring to mainly because we persist in looking at things from the wrong point of view. It makes all the difference in the world how we look at life, and the world how we look at life, and through whose eyes we study its prob-lems. What are the real values in life after all? How eagerly should we turn to see where the all-wise Master of mankind put in the em-phasis in life, and what was His scale of values. GOOD FARM VALUES WILL SELL

Even in these quiet times, as all real estate men call this season, providing you can get the right men to see the right place. From August 23 to September 2, I sold three fine farms and received an offer on a fourth good place which looks like business. Am offering one of those choice, improved farms on the famous Oak Hill, Harvard, where a city man has spared no expense to get every modern convenience with electric lights and running water everywhere-60 acres, 250 fruit trees, high, sightly and near to the beautiful town center. Will sacrifice much on cost for quick sale.

All kinds, from $500 upwards. A real farm of 38 acres with good buildings for $1600. They will never be any cheaper. Nineteen acres, pleasant buildings, all furnished for summer or all year, reduced to $1600.

Howe performed the ceremony, using the double ring service. The bride was gowned in white Austrian silk syspe, cut en traine and draped with white silk chiffon and trimmings of duchess and shadow lace. The veil of lace was caught with orange blossoms and lilles of the valley. She carried a large show-er bouquet of white bride roses. The maid of honor, Miss Lucy B. Raddin. a life-long friend of the bride, was very pretty in her dress of pink crepe de chine with garniture of light blue of the same material and duchess lace. She carried a bouquet of fragrant pink bride roses. The best man, a friend of the groom. was George H. Cary of Brockton and the ribbon girls, in white, were Ruth and Dorothy Carroll, nieces of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Gay assisted at the reception following the ceremony. The room where the cake, ice cream and fruit punch were served was bright in decorations of yellow and brown and the serving was by mem-bers of the Brown Loaf club. The bride's traveling suit was a handsome tailor-made one with hat to match. As the hour of departure came the couple were not successful in eiuding friends, who watchfully waited on the lawn, but were caught in the shower of confetti, etc., as they were hurried away in their automobile. How to Use Stale Bread.

The modern housekeeper is likely to buy a loaf of fresh bread every day at the baker's, but our grandmothers made their bread at home and used up every scrap of one baking before baking day came around again. Here are some of the ingenious ways in which one grandmother disguised stale bread so that the most pernickety child she had would not know it from a brand new dish.

Cut squares of very hard bread two inches thick, steam over boiling water for twenty minutes and serve hot. with butter and maple sirup. Or cut the bread in one inch squares, put in a colander and dash cold water over them. Then fry the squares in butter until they are a delicate brown. Break two eggs over them. cook three minutes and serve immediately. This is particularly good' for breakfast. Another way is to make our old friend, French or Spanish toast, which is good for breakfast or luncheon. Cut rather thick slices of bread, dip in milk, then in beaten egg, and fry a delicate brown. Serve this very hot and, if possible, with maple sirup.

If you happen to have a whole stale loaf left over, here is a fascinating way to use it. Cut off all the crust. put it on a tin and set in the oven to dry and brown. When it is a light golden brown lay it on the molding board and crush fine. Then cut the crustless loaf into pieces one inch thick and two or three inches long. Beat two eggs very light, add two cupfuls of sweet milk and a pinch of salt, dip the pieces of bread in the mixture, roll in the fine breadcrumbs and drop them into hot lard. When they are fried a nice brown put them on a hot dish and sprinkle thickly with sugar and a little fine cinnamon.

A really delicious pudding can be made in the following manner: Take rather thick slices of bread from which the crust is trimmed. Butter these slices on both sides. Heat a can of rather tart red or purple plums, put a layer of fruit in the bottom of a pudding dish, then a layer of bread and butter and continue until the dish is filled. Set it in the oven for five minutes to get heated through. Then remove it from the oven, cover with a plate, put a weight on it and set where it will become thoroughly cold. Eat it with cream and sugar. Tart cherries may be used in place of plums or blackberries, and there should be plenty of juice, so that the bread may be saturated.

How to Make "Old" Lace.

Once more we nave reached the point in the revolution of fashion when laces, especially the real ones. must have the old look now required by the costumers in making up lace trimmed gowns. There is a way to make new lace look old, which, so far as color is concerned, cannot be told from the priceless heirlooms.

All that is needed is a newspaper. Strips of newspaper are cut a trifle wider than the lace is to be tinted. To these the edges of the lace are carefully sewed. A roll of newspapers about the size of an ordinary mailing tube is then made, and the lace trimmed newspaper strips are then rolled around this smoothly. The whole is then sealed and laid away. In the course of a few weeks or months the lace will have acquired the most perfect "old" color. A hundred years couldn't produce any better results than the newspaper properly put on.

stending to read

"Oh, I see a picture of a capsized ship in the book you're reading." This called her attention to the in verted position of the volume, and she reversed it. There was no sound except the turning of its leaves, which occurred so rapidly that she must have been capable of reading a page every ten seconds. Finally he said with a yawn:

"I shall have to go to bed early tonight. I've been up till late for several nights."

"I'm sorry you must go early." He took out his watch. It was a quarter to 9. "I think I'll go now," he said. "I'll drop into the club for a few minutes before I go to my room." "Good night."

Since he had not risen this was some what unexpected. He arose with a scowl on his brow and, without saying a word of adieu, strode to the closet in the hall and was hunting for his hat and cane when he heard a sob directly behind him. She was there, holding her handkerchief to her eyes. He clasped her in his arms, and her head fell on his shoulder. There was an impressive silence for some mo-ments, which he broke.

"I don't believe this test plan is at all necessary."

"I-don't-think so."

"I'm sure there are no disagreeable features about you that would cause me to wish myself unmarried." "You won't treat me badly, will you Harry, dear?"

"No.' The promise was sealed with a kiss. "Must you go so early?" "By no means. Now that we have proved that we love each other there's no possibility of our being dissatisfied with each other after marriage." He was not so sleepy as he had sup posed. At any rate, it was half past 3 in the morning when he took his departure.

rants and eating houses, butchers, bakers, confectioners, florists, candy and popcorn venders, barbers, bartenders and a host of others. The army is getting larger. In ten years the host of workers has increased 58 per cent. Recently the announcement came from certain iron and steel trusts, followed later by a great textile corporation. that they would have to require their workingmen to labor seven days in the week. Pressure in competition is the basis of the demand. Extra pay is, of course, offered the workmen. But every thinking man who has watched the trend of such things knows that it will not be long till those same workmen will be back on the same pay as on six days. Sunday work is now demanded that a few years ago public sentiment would not have tolerated. The Republic's Bulwark, nation's fathers called the Sabbath the bulwark of the republic. The New York Call, the leading Socialist daily, which certainly cannot be accused of being puritanical, sounds its warning and speaks of the depressing and demoralizing effect of the present Sunday on the 5,500,000 of New York's inhabitants who are devoting the day. to a feverish pursuit of a relaxation which they do not find. The "subway, surface and elevated cars jammed to the doors," the "sacred concerts" full of sacred smut and disrobing acts which are "a shame and a disgrace." Say, fellow Christian, fellow citizen.

Sunday ought to be the best, the brightest day of the week for the workingman, but he isn't finding it in the continental Sabbath. The old Amerlcan Sabhath may have been tame, but it was refreshing. The modern Sunday is a gigantic blunder. It offers absolutely nothing of value to American life. It begins late with a long. drawn out breakfast. Weary eyed members of the family who were up till midnight or after come trailing down. At church time all are buried in the blanket sheets and comic section of the Sunday newspaper. The day ends in nervous exhaustion and weari ness. Spend the day godward. Push back the world. Give us a day of hush from the clang of yesterday. Oh, for the refreshing breeze of our old time sane. sensible, sober American Sunday!
